Abstract

The place of metropolitan Andrei Şaguna in the history of Romanian people from Transylvania and in the memory of Romanian Orthodox Church was always very important. His grate personality had marked our ecclesiastical and cultural live. His writings are very important today when we need models and landmarks in the process of knowing the through meaning of life. His life was a holy one and supported with honor the mission of defending the orthodox faith. In our study we bring a little gift of gratitude for our father and for his grate legacy, in celebration of 140 years from his passing into eternity.
